

The Connecticut Supreme Court Historical Society, in conjunction with the Connecticut Supreme Court, will mark Law Day 2018 on Tuesday, May 1, with a celebration of the separation of powers doctrine. The public is welcome to attend.

The ceremony will start at 10 a.m. in the Supreme Court Courtroom, located at 231 Capitol Ave., Hartford. It will feature high school winners of an art and essay contest based on this year's theme, Separation of Powers: Framework for Freedom.

Bairon Salgado-Cruz, who attends the Greater Hartford Academy of the Arts, won the art award for his depiction of the "3 Branches of Government." Charlie Case, who also attends the Greater Hartford Academy of the Arts, won the essay contest. His entry is named "We Come in Three."

Speakers will include Connecticut Supreme Court Senior Associate Justice Richard N. Palmer; Attorney Wesley W. Horton, president of the Connecticut Supreme Court Historical Society; and Judge Kimberly A. Knox, who will introduce the students' presentations.
