Introduction

A Guide to Resources in the Law Library

- "A decree of legal separation shall have the effect of a decree dissolving the marriage except that neither party shall be free to marry." Conn. Gen. Stat. § 46b-67(d) (2021).
- "The plaintiff filed for legal separation on May 11, 2001, on the ground of irretrievable breakdown. The defendant filed a cross complaint for dissolution of the parties' marriage. On October 15, 2002, the court rendered judgment dissolving the marriage." Raso v. Raso, 92 Conn. App. 678, 680, 886 A.2d 863 (2005).
- "The plaintiff . . . commenced this action for a legal separation and other relief by a complaint dated May 23, 2005. A copy of the writ of summons and complaint was served in hand on the defendant on May 24, 2005. The defendant did not file an appearance, and the matter was placed on the uncontested list for January 26, 2006. On January 26, 2006, the plaintiff appeared and filed a motion to amend her complaint, requesting a dissolution of the marriage rather than a legal separation. The defendant did not appear at the hearing, and a judgment of dissolution was rendered by the court...." Berzins v. Berzins, 105 Conn. App. 648, 650, 938 A.2d 1281 (2008).
- "In this issue of first impression, we are called on to determine whether the involuntary conservators of a conserved person can respond to an action for legal separation filed against the conserved person by filing an answer and cross complaint seeking a dissolution of marriage on behalf of the conserved person. We answer that question in the affirmative and, therefore, reverse the judgment of the trial court dismissing this cross complaint." Luster v. Luster, 128 Conn. App. 259, 260, 17 A.3d 1068 (2011).
- "In Szot v. Szot, 41 Conn. App. 238, 674 A.2d 1384 (1996), we reversed the trial court's judgment that converted a legal separation into a marital dissolution on the ground that the court had violated the plaintiff's right to due process by terminating a hearing prematurely and, thus, denying her a reasonable opportunity to be heard on the issues involved. Id., 238-39. Our recitation of the facts in Szot is instructive." Eilers v. Eilers, 89 Conn. App. 210, 216, 873 A.2d 185 (2005).
- "The procedure to convert a decree of legal separation into a decree of dissolution is governed by General Statutes §§ 46b-65 and 46b-66 and Practice Book §§ 25-36 and 25-37. Pursuant to § 46b-65(b) and § 25-36, a motion or petition for a decree of dissolution after legal separation may be filed at any time after the entry of a decree of legal separation and must state, inter alia, that the parties have not resumed marital relations. Thus, 'a party seeking to convert a legal separation into a dissolution under General Statutes 46b-65(b) must comply with Practice Book [§ 25-36] which requires the petitioner to state in the petition whether the parties have resumed marital relations.'" Buggy v. Buggy, Superior Court, Judicial District of Stamford-Norwalk, No. FA05-4005647-S (Oct. 25, 2010) (2010 WL 4723213) (2010 Conn. Super. LEXIS 2833).

Section 1: Effect, Definition and History

A Guide to Resources in the Law Library

SCOPE:

- Bibliographic resources relating to the distinction between legal separation and dissolution of marriage.

DEFINITION:

- Effect of Decree of Legal Separation: "A decree of legal separation shall have the effect of a decree dissolving the marriage except that neither party shall be free to marry." Conn. Gen. Stat. § 46b-67\(d\) (2021).

STATUTES:

- Conn. Gen. Stat. (2021)

You can visit your local law library or search the most recent statutes and public acts on the Connecticut General Assembly website to confirm that you are using the most up-to-date statutes.

§ 46b-65. Filing of declaration...dissolution of marriage after legal separation decree when no declaration filed. "(a) If the parties to a decree of legal separation at any time file their written declaration stating that they no longer wish to be legally separated and the declaration is signed, acknowledged and witnessed, and filed with the clerk of the superior court for the judicial district in which the separation was decreed, the declaration shall be entered upon the docket, under the entries relating to the complaint, and the decree shall be vacated and the complaint shall be deemed dismissed.

(b) At any time after the entry of a decree of legal separation, either party may petition the superior court for the judicial district in which the decree was entered for a decree dissolving the marriage. The court may enter the decree in the presence of the party seeking the dissolution or, if a party attests that no restraining order issued pursuant to section 46b-15, as amended by this act, or protective order issued pursuant to section 46b-38c, between the parties is in effect or pending before the court, the court may enter the decree without requiring the presence of either party." (2022 Supplement, as amended by Public Act 22-26, Sec. 8)

§ 46b-67. Waiting period. Filing of motion to waive waiting period. "(a) Following the expiration of ninety days after the day on which a complaint for dissolution or legal separation is made returnable, or after the expiration of six months, where proceedings have been stayed under section 46b-53, the court may proceed on the complaint....

(b) If the parties attest, under oath, that they have an agreement as to all terms of the dissolution of marriage or civil union or of the legal separation and wish the court to enter a decree of dissolution of marriage or civil union or of legal separation prior to the expiration of the time periods set forth in subsection (a) of this section, and file a motion seeking the waiver of said time periods, the court may waive the provisions of subsection (a) of this section."

§ 46b-81. Assignment of property and transfer of title. "(a) At the time of entering a decree annulling or dissolving a marriage or for legal separation pursuant to a complaint under section 46b-45, the Superior Court may assign to either spouse all or any part of the estate of the other spouse. The court may pass title to real property to either party or to a third person or may order the sale of such real property, without any act by either spouse, when in the judgment of the court it is the proper mode to carry the decree into effect."

CASES:

Once you have identified useful cases, it is important to update the cases before you rely on them. Updating case law means checking to see if the cases are still good law. You can contact your local law librarian to learn about the tools available to you to update cases.

- Meeks v. Meeks, Superior Court, Judicial District of Middlesex at Middletown, No. FA06-4005259-S (July 26, 2013) (56 Conn. L. Rptr. 579) (2013 WL 4420060). "The court also found that the agreement not to proceed with the dissolution but rather to seek a legal separation was done to allow the defendant to remain on the plaintiff's medical insurance because he had undergone major back surgery and was still recovering from that operation."
- Berzins v. Berzins, 306 Conn. 651, 654, 51 A.3d 941, (2012). "The plaintiff commenced the present action seeking a legal separation from the named defendant, David Berzins (Berzins), and other relief. Berzins failed to file an appearance and the case was placed on the uncontested list for a January 26, 2006 hearing, at which Berzins failed to appear. At the hearing, the plaintiff filed a motion to amend her complaint to seek dissolution of the marriage. The court... rendered a default judgment against Berzins and dissolved the parties' marriage pursuant to the terms of the plaintiff's proposed orders."
- Mitchell v. Mitchell, 194 Conn. 312, 318, 481 A.2d 31, 34 (1984). "General Statutes 46b-65 (codified as § 46-61 and recodified in 1979 as § 46b-65) was enacted in 1973 as part of a complete revision of the domestic relations statutes. Public Acts 1973, No. 73-373."
- Mitchell v. Mitchell, 194 Conn. 312, 321, 481 A.2d 31, 34 (1984). "An obvious goal of the legislature in enacting § 46b-65 was to reduce the role of the court by creating a summary proceeding when there is no dispute between the parties. To that effect subsection (a) contemplates that the court satisfy itself that the prescribed formal declaration has been filed before vacating the separation decree while subsection (b) contemplates a minimal role for the court when there is no dispute that the parties had not resumed marital relations. When that is the case the statute requires the court to give effect to the parties' status and convert a de facto dissolution into a de jure dissolution."
- Satter v. Satter, 153 Conn. 230, 231, 215 A.2d 415 (1965). "In 1955, the legislature enacted Public Act No. 390, now

General Statutes §§ 46-29 and 46-30, which provided that a legal separation could be decreed upon the petition of a party on grounds which would have entitled that party to a divorce. Such a separation would have the effect of a divorce except that neither party would be free to marry any third party unless a decree dissolving and terminating the marriage was subsequently rendered upon petition of either party.”

- Viglione v. Viglione, 22 Conn.Supp. 65, 69, 160 A.2d 501 (1960). “Since there is nowhere any provision that a decree of separation in any manner affects other rights and obligations of married persons, it appears that despite a decree of separation each separated husband and wife retains all the statutory rights of property, inheritance and administration in the estate of the other together with all the obligations of the continuing marriage contract except for those concerned with cohabitation.”

Section 2: Grounds for Legal Separation

A Guide to Resources in the Law Library

"A decree of dissolution of a marriage or a decree of legal separation shall be granted upon a finding that one of the following causes has occurred:

- (1) The marriage has broken down irretrievably;
- (2) the parties have lived apart by reason of incompatibility for a continuous period of at least the eighteen months immediately prior to the service of the complaint and that there is no reasonable prospect that they will be reconciled;
- (3) adultery;
- (4) fraudulent contract;
- (5) willful desertion for one year with total neglect of duty;
- (6) seven years' absence, during all of which period the absent party has not been heard from;
- (7) habitual intemperance;
- (8) intolerable cruelty;
- (9) sentence to imprisonment for life or the commission of any infamous crime involving a violation of conjugal duty and punishable by imprisonment for a period in excess of one year;
- (10) legal confinement in a hospital or hospitals or other similar institution or institutions, because of mental illness, for at least an accumulated period totaling five years within the period of six years next preceding the date of the complaint." Conn. Subsection (a) established a new and expeditious method by which parties who had reconciled could vacate their separation agreement without the intervention of a judge. They simply file a signed, acknowledged, and witnessed declaration of resumption with the clerk of the Superior Court in which the separation was decreed and if the court finds that the declaration meets the statutory requirements, the decree is vacated and the original complaint is dismissed.”*

Section 4: Conversion of Legal Separation into Dissolution of Marriage

A Guide to Resources in the Law Library

SCOPE:

Bibliographic sources relating to the conversion of a legal separation into a dissolution of marriage.

DEFINITIONS:

- Financial Orders: “Neither the trial court’s memorandum of decision nor the judgment file contains any finding that the orders entered at the time of the legal separation were ‘fair and equitable’ in light of the circumstances existing at the time of the dissolution. Therefore, although we hold that the trial court properly granted the defendant’s petition converting the parties’ legal separation into a dissolution of marriage, the trial court’s incorporation of the prior orders entered in the decree of legal separation into the decree of dissolution of marriage without a finding that the orders were ‘fair and equitable’ at the time of the dissolution was improper.” Mignosa v. Mignosa, 25 Conn. App. 210, 216, 594 A.2d 15 (1991).
- “Notwithstanding the decisions in Mignosa and Szot, there is a split of authority within the Superior Court regarding whether the trial court may modify a separation agreement when incorporating it into a dissolution decree because of the earlier Supreme Court opinion in *Mitchell v.  - (b) At any time after the entry of a decree of legal separation, either party may petition the superior court for the judicial district in which the decree was entered for a decree dissolving the marriage. The court may enter the decree in the presence of the party seeking the dissolution or, if a party attests that no restraining order issued pursuant to section 46b-15, as amended by this act, or protective order issued pursuant to section 46b-38c, between the parties is in effect or pending before the court, the court may enter the decree without requiring the presence of either party. - Buggy v. Buggy, 141 Conn. App. 733, 735, 64 A. 3d 778, (2013). “...the court entered an order dissolving the parties’ marriage and converted the decree of legal separation to a decree of dissolution. in to a divorce decree. General Statutes §§ 46b-65 and 46b-66, and Practice Book §§ 25-36 and 25-37 govern the procedure to convert a decree of legal separation into a decree of dissolution."

- Meeks v. Meeks, Superior Court, Judicial District of Middlesex at Middletown, No. FA06-4005259-S (July 26, 2013) (56 Conn. L. Rptr. 579, 581) (2013 WL 4420060). "Nevertheless, even though there is a slight split in authority as to whether Mitchell and Mignosa collectively require that the court inquire into the fairness of a separation agreement, a majority of the trial courts have made the initial determination of whether the agreement remains fair and equitable, which remains to be the current trend. Given the fact that Mitchell primarily focused on the implications of resumed marital relations, rather than a party's challenge as to the fairness and equity of the original agreement, along with the fact that Mignosa stated that a court is required to determine whether the original agreement remains fair and equitable, the current trend of inquiring into the fairness of the agreements remains the stronger position.
- Treadwell v. Treadwell, Superior Court, Judicial District of Fairfield at Bridgeport, No. FA01-0386575-S (Sept. 24, 2012) (2012 WL 4902757). "the court finds that the order of alimony, as modified by order of the court (Winslow, J.) on January 13, 2011 are not fair and equitable today. Therefore, the court grants the defendant's Motion to Modify the Alimony (#142.79). The court is however, bound by the provisions of the Legal Separation which are property distributions which effect the orders of alimony."

"The Husband is asking the court to interpret the Legal Separation Agreement property settlement to mean that the Wife is only to share in one incentive, not the subsequent years incentive. The court must look to the plain language of the Agreement. Because a stipulation is considered a contract, [o]ur interpretation of a separation agreement that is incorporated into a dissolution decree is guided by the general principles governing the construction of contracts." (Internal quotation marks omitted).

- Sargent v. Sargent, 125 Conn. App. 824, 826, 9 A.3d 799 (2011). "On March 16, 2009, the defendant filed a motion for modification of alimony and a petition for a decree dissolving the parties' marriage pursuant to General Statutes § 46b-65(b). In support of his motion for modification of alimony, the defendant claimed that his 'financial circumstances [had] changed significantly' from the time that the parties were legally separated. The plaintiff filed an objection to the defendant's petition for dissolution on June 3, 2009, claiming that conversion of the separation into a dissolution would cause her irreparable harm.”).
