A Guide to Resources in the Law Library

- Motion for Summary Judgment: "In any action, including administrative appeals which are enumerated in Section 14-7, any party may move for a summary judgment as to any claim or defense as a matter of right at any time if no scheduling order exists and the case has not been assigned for trial." Conn. Practice Book § 17-44 (2022).
- Opposition to Summary Judgment: "Unless otherwise ordered by the judicial authority, any adverse party shall file and serve a response to the motion for summary judgment within forty-five days of the filing of the motion, including opposing affidavits and other available documentary evidence." Conn. Practice Book § 17-45 (2022).
- Affidavits: "Supporting and opposing affidavits shall be made on personal knowledge, shall set forth such facts as would be admissible in evidence, and shall show affirmatively that the affiant is competent to testify to the matters stated therein. Sworn or certified copies of all papers or parts thereof referred to in an affidavit shall be attached thereto." Conn. Practice Book § 17-46 (2022).
- Judgment: "The judgment sought shall be rendered forthwith if the pleadings, affidavits and any other proof submitted show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law." Conn. Practice Book § 17-49 (2022).
- Material Fact: "is a fact which will make a difference in the result of the case." Hosp. of Cent. Connecticut v. Neurosurgical Associates, P.C., 139 Conn. App. 778, 783, 57 A.3d 794, 797 (2012).
- Partial Summary Judgment as to Liability: "A summary judgment, interlocutory in character, may be rendered on the issue of liability alone, although there is a genuine issue as to damages. In such case the judicial authority shall order an immediate hearing before a judge trial referee, before the court, or before a jury, whichever may be proper, to determine the amount of the damages. If the determination is by a jury, the usual procedure for setting aside the verdict shall be applicable. Upon the conclusion of these proceedings, the judicial authority shall forthwith render the appropriate summary judgment." Conn. Practice Book § 17-50 (2022).

- Reilly v. Reilly, Superior Court, Judicial District of Stamford-Norwalk at Stamford, No. FSTCV165015959S (February 21, 2018) (65 Conn. L. Rptr. 905) (2018 WL 1459933). "There is no appellate authority settling the issue of the appropriateness of a motion for summary judgment in a probate appeal. There is a split of authority in the Superior Courts on this issue. In numerous decisions, Superior Court judges have determined that summary judgment motions are appropriate in probate appeals. . . . In other Superior Court cases, courts have held that summary judgment is not permitted in an appeal from probate. . . . This court adopts the reasoning of the cases which hold that a summary judgment motion is appropriate in a probate appeal."
- Soderburg v. Unitrin Preferred Ins. Co., Superior Court, Judicial District of Tolland at Rockville, No. CV-166010893-S (July 24, 2018) (2018 Conn. Super. LEXIS 1511). "The present action commenced in 2016, more than one year after the latest possible trigger date for these liabilities under these policies. All three insurers utilized virtually the same one-year limitation of action language in their insurance contracts with the plaintiffs, and, consequently, these three defendants are entitled to summary judgment as a matter of law."
- Kobylanska v. Northstar Condo. Ass'n, Superior Court, Judicial District of Stamford-Norwalk at Stamford, No. CV-146021406-S, (July 26, 2016) (62 Conn. L. Rptr. 757, 758) (2016 Conn. Super. LEXIS 2055). "It is unclear whether the defendant failed to apprehend the now identified issues in the complaint when it was first reviewed, or whether the defendant decided, as a tactical matter, to raise the deficiency for the first time in order to prevent the plaintiffs from filing a substitute pleading. The Supreme Court has considered the circumstances under which it is appropriate to employ a motion for summary judgment in situations where the issues might have been addressed by a motion to strike. In Larobina v. McDonald, 274 Conn. 394, 400-02, 876 A.2d 522 (2005), the Supreme Court discussed at length the differences between a motion to strike and a motion for summary judgment. The court also noted that the use of a motion for summary judgment instead of a motion to strike may be unfair to the nonmoving party because [t]he granting of a defendant's motion for summary judgment puts the plaintiff out of court . . . [while the] granting of a motion to strike allows the plaintiff to replead his or her case . . . With these authorities in mind, we conclude that the use of a motion for summary judgment to challenge the legal sufficiency of a complaint is appropriate when the complaint fails to set forth a cause of action and the defendant can establish that the defect could not be cured by repleading . . . If it is clear on the face of the complaint that it is legally insufficient and that an opportunity to amend it would not help the plaintiff, we can perceive no reason why the defendant should be prohibited from claiming that he is entitled to judgment as a matter of law and from invoking the only available procedure for raising such a claim after the pleadings are closed.’ (Citations omitted; internal quotation marks omitted.)

Larobina v. McDonald, supra, 400-02.

Accordingly, in order for the defendant to prevail in its motion for summary judgment the court must not only determine that allegations of the complaint are legally insufficient, but also that affording the plaintiffs the opportunity to replead would not help them.”

- Brown v. Otake, 164 Conn App. 686, 708-709, 138 A.3d 951 (2016). “According to the court's articulation, summary judgment was warranted on the negligent misrepresentation count because ‘[t]here were no facts presented that showed negligent representation on the part of these defendants.’ With respect to the count alleging intentional misrepresentation, the court articulated that it granted summary judgment because ‘[t]here were no facts presented that any misrepresentations were made, negligent or false.’ On the basis of our review of the record, including the arguments of the parties at summary judgment, we construe the court's ruling as holding that the plaintiff failed to present any evidence rebutting the proof submitted by the defendants showing that the representations on which the plaintiff relies as misrepresentations were never made, thereby establishing a lack of a genuine issue of material fact on an essential element necessary to prevail at trial on either misrepresentation count. That conclusion is legally and logically correct, and supported by the record. Once the defendants presented evidence demonstrating the lack of a genuine issue of material fact regarding the existence of a misrepresentation of fact, the evidentiary burden shifted to the plaintiff, and he could no longer rely solely upon the allegations in his complaint. To survive summary judgment, the plaintiff needed to marshal some evidence countering that submitted by the defendants, and it was not the court's responsibility to search the evidentiary record provided by the moving party on his behalf. Having failed to present any evidence himself or to reference any portion of the evidence submitted by the defendants, the plaintiff failed to meet his burden. Accordingly, we conclude that the court properly granted summary judgment on the misrepresentation counts as a matter of law."

- Ramos v. J.J. Mottes Co., Superior Court, Judicial District of Hartford, CV 09-6006373-S (December 1, 2015) (61 Conn. L. Rptr. 329). "Because a party may now file a motion for summary judgment even before the pleadings are closed, a party no longer must plead a time limitation as a special defense prior to moving for summary judgment. 'If [the court] were to hold that a motion for summary judgment cannot be made prior to pleading a statute of limitations as a special defense, [the court] would negate that portion of §[17-44] that provides that a motion for summary judgment can be made "at any time," without the necessity of closing the pleadings.' (Footnote omitted.) Girard v. Weiss, 43 Conn. App. 397, 416, 682 A.2d 1078, cert. denied, 239 Conn. 946, 686 A.2d 121 (1996). 'When there is no such material fact in dispute or where there is agreement of the parties as to every relevant fact, we conclude that the pleadings need not be closed in order to move for summary judgment.' Id., 417. In Girard, the court held that since the parties did not disagree as to the facts, the trial court could properly consider the motion for summary judgment. Id."
- Glencore, Ltd. v. Winkler, Superior Court, Judicial District of Stamford-Norwalk, No. CV 13-5014052-S, (Aug. 11, 2015), (2015 Conn. Super. LEXIS 2107) (2015 WL 5315410) (60 Conn. L. Rptr. 806). "Essentially as a tautology, a motion for summary judgment is intended to lead to a 'judgment.' The court is unaware of any general authority in Connecticut for using the summary judgment procedure to eliminate a defense separate from consideration of the merits of the claim to which it is claimed to be applicable (as opposed to rendering judgment in favor of a defendant based on a defense)—deleting a defense but without issuance of any order coming with the scope of the concept of 'judgment.' Thus, Practice Book § 17-49, relating to the consequences of a successful motion for summary judgment, provides: 'The judgment sought shall be rendered forthwith if the pleadings, affidavits and any other proof submitted show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.' A judgment can enter on a successful motion for summary judgment by a defendant on a special defense (assuming it to be a complete defense, as opposed to a partial defense such as comparative negligence), as that would result in a judgment for the defendant on plaintiff's complaint. Summary judgment for a plaintiff successfully disproving a defense but not proving the merits of its own claim would result in a ruling characterized as...?"

- Mott v. Wal-Mart Stores E., LP, 139 Conn. App. 618, 628, 57 A.3d 391, 397 (2012). “To prevail on a motion for summary judgment, however, the defendant had an obligation to negate the factual claims as framed by the complaint. To that end, it was incumbent on the defendant to provide the court with more than its belief that it was ‘readily evident’ that the plaintiff ultimately would be unable to meet his obligation at trial to produce evidence to prove that the defendant had actual or constructive notice of the alleged defect. In other words, before the plaintiff had acquired any obligation to produce evidence that would tend to show that the defendant, in fact, had notice of the defect, the defendant had the burden of producing evidentiary support for its assertion that its lack of notice was an undisputed fact.”
- Kindred Nursing Centers E., LLC v. Morin, 125 Conn. App. 165, 169-70, 7 A.3d 919, 921 (2010). “Before addressing the merits of the plaintiff’s arguments, we must address our authority to consider them. Ordinarily, the denial of a motion for summary judgment is not appealable. Brown & Brown, Inc. v. Blumenthal, 288 Conn. 646, 653, 954 A.2d 816 (2008). That rule does not apply, however, if the moving party was not afforded the opportunity to have a full trial on the merits. Bristol v. Vogelsonger, 21 Conn.App. 600, 609, 575 A.2d 252 (1990). Because the trial court in this case granted the defendant’s motion for summary judgment, the plaintiff’s appeal falls within this exception to the general rule, and, accordingly, it is properly before us.”
- Maltas v. Maltas, 298 Conn. 354, 370-371, 2 A.3d (2010). “The trial court apparently concluded that, because as a general matter, foreign judgments are presumed valid and the burden of proving that the foreign court lacked jurisdiction lies with the assailant; see Packer Plastics, Inc. v. Laundon, supra, 214 Conn. 57; it was necessary for the defendant, at this stage of the proceedings, to satisfy that burden. We disagree with that determination. Rather, the burden of proof on a motion for summary judgment remains with the moving party even when, as here, the nonmoving party will bear the burden of persuasion at trial [...] Because the plaintiff sought summary disposition of this matter, thereby depriving the defendant of the right to a trial, the plaintiff bore the heavy burden of showing that there were no real issues to be tried and that judgment in his favor unquestionably was warranted as a matter of law. Because the plaintiff failed to make that showing, the trial court improperly rendered summary judgment in his favor. The judgment is reversed and the case is remanded for further proceedings according to law.”
- Brown & Brown, Inc. v. Blumenthal, 288 Conn. 646, 653, 954 A.2d 816, 821-22 (2008). “In the present case, the plaintiff appeals from the trial court's denial of its motion for summary judgment. The denial of a motion for summary judgment does not result in a judgment, however, and no judgment therefore was rendered. 'As a general rule, an interlocutory ruling may not be appealed pending the final disposition of a case. See, e.g., Doublewal Corp. v. Toffolon, 195 Conn. 384, 388, 488 A.2d 444 (1985); see also State v. Curcio, [supra, 191 Conn. at 30, 463 A.2d 566] (right of appeal is purely statutory and is limited to appeals by aggrieved parties from final judgments). The denial of a motion for summary judgment ordinarily is an interlocutory ruling and, accordingly, not a final judgment for purposes of appeal. See, e.g., Connecticut National Bank v. Rytman, 241 Conn. 24, 34, 694 A.2d 1246 (1997).'"

- Krevis v. City of Bridgeport, 262 Conn. 813, 823-24, 817 A.2d 628 (2003). "In the present case, the colloquy between the plaintiff's counsel and the court reveals that the plaintiff's counsel was well aware of the procedural requirements for a motion for summary judgment. Nevertheless, after having conferred with his client, the plaintiff's counsel asked the court to rule immediately on the question of law in order to avoid presenting evidence for several days, after which the court might grant a motion for a directed verdict. We are satisfied on this record that the plaintiff's counsel knowingly waived compliance with the procedural provisions of the Practice Book relating to motions for summary judgment."
- R.I. Waterman Prop., Inc. v. Misiorski, 51 Conn. App. 659, 661, 725 A.2d 340, 341 (1999). "We agree with the defendants that until the motion for permission to file a summary judgment motion is granted, § 17-45 does not come into effect. Once notice is given of the granting of permission to file a summary judgment motion, the motion for summary judgment should be placed on the short calendar not fewer than fifteen days from the giving of the notice. This gives the adverse party the opportunity to file opposing affidavits and other available documentary evidence as set forth in § 17-45."
- Mac's Car City, Inc. v. American National Bank, 205 Conn. 255, 262, 532 A.2d 1302 (1987). "Accordingly, we hold that it is within the trial court's discretion to consider a renewed motion for summary judgment that has previously been denied where, as here, additional or new evidence has been submitted which was not before the court in ruling upon the earlier motion for summary judgment. See 73 Am. Jur.2d 733, Summary Judgment § 12. We must caution, however, that our holding today should not be construed to condone future unnecessary piecemeal litigation brought on by the repeated filing of successive motions for summary judgment.”

'On a motion by [the] defendant for summary judgment the burden is on [the] defendant to negate each claim as framed by the complaint....' 49 C.J.S. 365, Judgments § 261(b) (1997). It necessarily follows that it is only '[o]nce [the] defendant's burden in establishing his entitlement to summary judgment is met [that] the burden shifts to [the] plaintiff to show that a genuine issue of fact exists justifying a trial.' 49 C.J.S. 366, supra, § 261(b). App. LEXIS 331) (2019 WL 4252097). "As this court has observed, 'to defeat summary judgment . . . the plaintiff's admissible evidence must show circumstances that would be sufficient to permit a rational finder of fact to infer that the defendant's employment decision was more likely than not based in whole or in part on discrimination . . . .' Taing v. CAMRAC, LLC, supra, 189 Conn. App. 28. Because the plaintiff has not presented such evidence, we conclude that the court properly rendered summary judgment in favor of the defendant."
- Magee Ave., LLC v. Lima Ceramic Tile, LLC, 183 Conn. App. 575, 584-585, 193 A.3d 700 (2018). "If mere assertions of fact are insufficient to establish the existence of a material fact, then they are insufficient to establish the lack of an existence of material fact in the face of opposing evidence. In essence, the plaintiff here was required to respond to mere factual assertions with its own supporting affidavits and documentation before the defendant presented his evidence in support of those assertions in the first place. Considering that, under the rules of practice at the time of the hearing, an adverse party was required to file its evidence in opposition to a motion for summary judgment at least five days before the hearing on the motion, we fail to see how the defendant here should have been permitted to file his initial affidavit in support of the motion one day before the hearing. The defendant's affidavit therefore was untimely and should not have been considered by the trial court. Therefore, because the trial court should not have considered the defendant's affidavit, the court improperly rendered summary judgment in favor of the defendant."

- Stuart v. Freiberg, 316 Conn. 809, 822, 823-824, 116 A.3d 1195, 1204 (2015). "Specifically, the plaintiffs contend that, following a determination that there were genuine disputes over material facts bearing on other essential elements of the counts of fraud and negligent misrepresentation-for example, whether the defendant's financial statements were false-"the trial court should have simply ceased its analysis and denied summary judgment . . . ." Thus, the plaintiffs argue that it was improper for the trial court to consider, in succession, whether any genuine issue of material fact existed as to the essential element of reliance. We disagree."

"If a defendant's well supported motion for summary judgment shows that there is no genuine factual dispute as to multiple essential elements of a plaintiff's cause of action, such that none of them reasonably could be resolved in the plaintiff's favor at trial, the viability of that plaintiff's case is not improved if he only responds with sufficient counterevidence to call some of those essential elements back into question. Put differently, by raising a genuine issue of fact as to only some of the essential elements under attack, the plaintiff has not altered the potential outcome of his case. See Santopietro v. New Haven, supra, 239 Conn. 225. It logically follows that, in evaluating a defendant's motion for summary judgment, a trial court's task does not necessarily end upon its finding that a genuine factual dispute exists as to one or some essential elements of a plaintiff's cause of action. If a defendant has substantively addressed additional essential elements in support of his motion, so too should the trial court in determining whether summary judgment is appropriate."

- Taylor v. Barberino, 136 Conn. App. 283, 289-90, 44 A.3d 875, 878 (2012). "As this court has observed, '[o]nly evidence that would be admissible at trial may be used to support or oppose a motion for summary judgment' United Services Automobile Assn. v. Marburg, 46 Conn.App. 99, 110, 698 A.2d 914 (1997). The affidavits of Draskinis and Sgambati, in particular, plainly do not contain statements based on personal knowledge, as required under Practice Book § 17-46. Indeed, with respect to Draskinis, the court found, and we agree, that 'much of what is sworn to ... does [not] constitute facts that would be admissible at trial. Rather, much of the document consists of [statements] about matters which he has only learned of through reviews of deposition testimony, and offering statements that sound more like legal arguments than statements of fact.'"

- Baldwin v. Curtis, 105 Conn. App. 844, 852, 939 A.2d 1249, 1254 (2008). "As the defendant's evidence failed to negate a genuine issue of material fact, the plaintiff was not obligated to submit documents establishing the existence of such an issue. See Rockwell v. Quintner, supra, 96 Conn.App. at 228, 899 A.2d 738 (defendant's evidence failed to '[exclude] any real doubt as to the existence of any genuine issue of material fact'). Having failed to negate a genuine issue of material fact, the defendant did not meet her burden of establishing that, as a matter of law, summary judgment should have been rendered in her favor."
- City of New Haven v. Pantani, 89 Conn. App. 675, 679, 874 A. 2d 849 (2005). "[B]efore a document may be considered by the court in support of a motion for summary judgment, 'there must be a preliminary showing of [the document's] genuineness, i.e., that the proffered item of evidence is what its proponent claims it to be. The requirement of authentication applies to all types of evidence, including writings ....' Conn.Code Evid. § 9-1(a), commentary. Documents in support of or in opposition to a motion for summary judgment may be authenticated in a variety of ways, including, but not limited to, a certified copy of a document or the addition of an affidavit by a person with personal knowledge that the offered evidence is a true and accurate representation of what its proponent claims it to be."
- Paine Webber Jackson & Curtis, Inc. v. Winters, 13 Conn. App. 712, 721-22, 539 A.2d 595, 599-600 (1988). "Pleadings per se do not constitute documentary proof under § 380. Allegations of pleadings not admitted by a party are not proof of their contents. They merely set forth the cause of action and the issues of fact and law raised in the pleadings. The framework of the case is built by the pleadings. Unadmitted allegations of pleadings do not constitute documentary proof of the existence of a genuine issue as to any material fact on a motion for summary judgment. The quantum of evidentiary proof admissible at trial relevant to these allegations, or any later amendment of them, is not documentary proof under § 380 probative of, or relevant to, the grant or denial of summary judgment. The court's consideration of a motion for summary judgment is limited to the evaluation as a matter of law of the documentary proof submitted under § 380."

Additionally, in passing upon a motion for summary judgment, the trial court must view the documentary proof in the light most favorable to the nonmovant. Rawling v. New Haven, supra; Strada v. Connecticut Newspapers, Inc., 193 Conn. 313, 317, 477 A.2d 1005 (1984); Town Bank & Trust Co. v. Benson, supra, 176 Conn. at 309, 407 A.2d 971; *United Oil Co. v. A Guide to Resources in the Law Library

SCOPE:

Bibliographic resources relating to partial (interlocutory) summary judgment as to liability only.

DEFINITIONS:

- Partial Summary Judgment: "A summary judgment, interlocutory in character, may be rendered on the issue of liability alone, although there is a genuine issue as to damages. In such case the judicial authority shall order an immediate hearing before a judge trial referee, before the court, or before a jury, whichever may be proper, to determine the amount of the damages. If the determination is by a jury, the usual procedure for setting aside the verdict shall be applicable. "On August 10, 2018, the defendant filed another appeal from the partial summary judgment rendered by the trial court on April 23, 2018. . . . In response, the plaintiff maintains that the defendant has not appealed from a final judgment, thereby depriving this court of subject matter jurisdiction. We agree. . . . It is undisputed that the partial summary judgment that the court entered on April 23, 2018, did not dispose of all causes of action against the defendant, as the second count seeking an accounting pursuant to § 52-404 (b) remained pending. In addition, the defendant has not requested a written determination from the trial court regarding the significance of the issues resolved by the partial summary judgment entered against him. Mazurek v. Great American Insurance Company, Inc., Superior Court, judicial district of Waterbury, Complex Litigation Docket, Docket No. X02-CV-01-0177433-S (December 16, 2004, Schuman, J.) (38 Conn. L. Rptr. 402) (denying re-argument of a grant of summary judgment on fifty-one of the fifty-four specifications in a negligence count), aff'd in part and appeal dismissed in part, 284 Conn. 16 (2007). Other courts have stated, '[s]ummary judgment is unavailable as to particular allegations in a count when such an adjudication does not dispose of an entire cause of action...' Shelton Yacht & Cabana Club, Inc. v. Voccola, Superior Court, judicial district of Ansonia-Milford, Docket No. CV-01-0075380-S (February 2, 2007, Stevens, J.).

- GMAC Mortgage, LLC v. Ford, 144 Conn. App. 165, 176, 73 A.3d 742, 751 (2013). “[A] court may properly grant summary judgment as to liability in a foreclosure action if the complaint and supporting affidavits establish an undisputed prima facie case and the defendant fails to assert any legally sufficient special defense. See LaSalle National Bank v. Shook, 67 Conn. App. 93, 96–97, 787 A.2d 32 (2001); Union Trust Co. v. Jackson, 42 Conn. App. 413, 417, 679 A.2d 421 (1996).”
- Pfizer, Inc. v. Mine Safety Appliances Co., Superior Court, Judicial District of Hartford, No. CV04-4034705S, (May 19, 2008) (45 Conn. L. Rptr. 577) (2008 WL 2314196). “While there still appears to be no definitive appellate authority and there continues to be a split in the Superior Court, ‘the majority of the cases do not allow a party to eliminate some, but not all, of the allegations of a single count through a motion for summary judgment.’ (Footnote omitted.) Snodgrass v. Mulhearn, Superior Court, judicial district of New Britain at New Britain, Docket No. HHB CV 03 0523029 (May 18, 2006, Shaban, J.) (noting absence of appellate authority and collecting cases). A recent explanation stated, ‘the majority rule ... is that Connecticut procedure does not allow entry of summary judgment on one part or allegation of a cause of action when the ruling will not dispose of an entire claim, and therefore, will not allow entry of judgment on that claim. See generally Practice Book § 17–51.’ (Footnote omitted.) Bridgeport Harbor Place I, LLC v. Ganim, Superior Court, judicial district of Waterbury, Complex Litigation Docket at Waterbury, Docket No. X06 CV 04 0184523 (October 5, 2007, Stevens, J.).”

Once you have identified useful cases, it is important to update the cases before you rely on them. Updating case law means checking to see if the cases are still good law. You can contact your local law librarian to learn about the tools available to you to update cases.

- Psaki v. Karlton, 97 Conn. App. 64, 70, 903 A.2d 224 (2006). "First, the judgment of the court did not dispose of all causes of action brought by the parties. In fact, the judgment did not even dispose of the breach of contract claim. Second, neither the trial court nor this court made any written determination pursuant to Practice Book § 61-4(a) regarding the significance of the issues presented in this case. Moreover, Practice Book § 61-4(a) is not applicable because it 'applies to a trial court judgment that disposes of at least one cause of action....' Here, it is without question that the court's judgment does not dispose of at least one cause of action. Accordingly, we conclude that this appeal does not fall within either rule permitting an appeal from a judgment on less than all counts of the complaint."
