Introduction

A Guide to Resources in the Law Library

- “. . . an order entered by a court with proper jurisdiction ‘must be obeyed by the parties until it is reversed by orderly and proper proceedings.’ (Internal quotation marks omitted.) [Cologne v. Westfarms Associates, 197 Conn. 141, 145, 496 A.2d 476 (1985)] Id. We noted that a party has a duty to obey a court order ‘however erroneous the action of the court may be....’ (Internal quotation marks omitted.) Id. We registered our agreement with the ‘long-standing rule that a contempt proceeding does not open to reconsideration the legal or factual basis of the order alleged to have been disobeyed....’ (Internal quotation marks omitted.) Id., at 148. Finally, we emphasized that ‘court orders must be obeyed; there is no privilege to disobey a court’s order because the alleged contemnor believes that it is invalid.’” Mulholland v. Mulholland, 229 Conn. 643, 649, 643 A.2d 246, 249 (1994).
- “To find a party in contempt, a trial court must conclude that a party has disobeyed an order of the court. Contempt is a disobedience to the rules and orders of a court which has power to punish for such an offense.... A civil contempt is one in which the conduct constituting the contempt is directed against some civil right of an opposing party and the proceeding is initiated by him.’ (Citations omitted; internal quotation marks omitted.) Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald, 16 Conn. App. 548, 551, 547 A.2d 1387, cert. denied, 210 Conn. 802, 553 A.2d 615 (1988).” Castro v. Castro, 31 Conn. App. 761, 764, 627 A.2d 452, 454 (1993).

DEFINITIONS:

- "Contempt is a disobedience to the rules and orders of a court which has power to punish for such an offense Contempt may be civil or criminal in character A civil contempt is one in which the conduct constituting the contempt is directed against some civil right of an opposing party and the proceeding is initiated by him Criminal contempt is conduct which is directed against the dignity and authority of the court. In such a case, the court may punish the offender on its own motion, without the presentation of any charge, formal or otherwise, and solely upon facts within its own knowledge. When the offense is committed in the presence of the court, punishment may be imposed at once." State v. Jackson, 147 Conn. 167, 168-169, 158 A.2d 166, 167 (1960).
- "Contempts of court may also be classified as either direct or indirect, 'the test being whether the contempt is offered within or outside the presence of the court.' 17 Am. Jur. 2d, Contempt § 6; see also Goldfarb, [The Contempt Power (1963)] 67-77. A refusal to comply with an injunctive decree is an indirect contempt of court because it occurs outside the presence of the trial court." Cologne v. Westfarms Associates, 197 Conn. 141, 150, 496 A.2d 476, 482 (1985).

- Parisi v. Parisi, 315 Conn. 370, 384-385, 107 A.3d 920, 929-930 (2015). "Applying the foregoing principles to the present matter, we conclude that the alimony buyout provision of the parties' separation agreement is ambiguous, thereby precluding a finding of contempt. To begin, it is unclear whether the payment at issue was intended to be in the nature of a property distribution or lump sum alimony . . . The nature of the payment, if it were clear, might have been instructive as to what the parties intended regarding the manner of payment because, as the defendant contends, alimony is intended to provide the payee spouse ongoing support and, as such, ought to be readily accessible. Additionally, it is unclear whether the parties, in specifying that the payment be 'nontaxable and nondeductible,' were contemplating, as the plaintiff claims, that only the initial transfer itself meet those qualifications, or rather, as the defendant suggests, the qualifications apply more broadly to include her subsequent liquidation of the funds for her use . . . Finally, as to what forms of payment were acceptable for the satisfaction of the alimony buyout provision, the agreement is completely silent. Taken together, the foregoing factors render the parties' agreement unclear as to the issue at hand."

- Pace v. Pace, 134 Conn. App. 212, 222, 39 A.3d 756, 762-763 (2012). "Practice Book § 25-26 permits the court, when a party who is in arrears files a motion for modification, to consider whether the arrearage has accrued without sufficient excuse so as to constitute contempt and to determine whether any modification of alimony and child support shall be ordered prior to the payment of any arrearage found to exist. The court apparently did not find credible the plaintiff's claim that he was unable to pay alimony and child support, and found his claim in his motion for modification that he depleted his retirement accounts in order to pay his support obligations to be factually inaccurate. We cannot conclude that it was an abuse of discretion for the court to order the plaintiff to pay the arrearage not only in light of Practice Book § 25-26, but also because the defendant's motion for contempt was considered simultaneously with the plaintiff's motion for modification."
- Giordano v. Giordano, 127 Conn. App. 498, 502, 14 A.3d 1058, 1061 (2011). "[O]ur analysis of a [civil] judgment of contempt consists of two levels of inquiry. First, we must resolve the threshold question of whether the underlying order constituted a court order that was sufficiently clear and unambiguous so as to support a judgment of contempt.... This is a legal inquiry subject to de novo review.... Second, if we conclude that the underlying court order was sufficiently clear and unambiguous, we must then determine whether the trial court abused its discretion in issuing, or refusing to issue, a judgment of contempt, which includes a review of the trial court's determination of whether the violation was wilful or excused by a good faith dispute or misunderstanding.' (Internal quotation marks omitted.) In re Marcus S., 120 Conn. App. 745, 749-50, 994 A.2d 253, cert. denied, 297 Conn. 914, 995 A.2d 955 (2010)."
- Behrns v. Behrns, 124 Conn. App. 794, 809, 6 A.3d 184, 195-196 (2010). "In Connecticut, the general rule is that a court order must be followed until it has been modified or successfully challenged. Eldridge v. Eldridge, [supra, 244 Conn. at 530, 710 A.2d 757]; Behrns v. Behrns, [supra, 80 Conn.App. at 289, 835 A.2d 68]. Our Supreme Court repeatedly has advised parties against engaging in

'self-help' and has stressed that an 'order of the court must be obeyed until it has been modified or successfully challenged.'... Sablosky v. Sablosky, [258 Conn. 713, 719, 784 A.2d 890 (2001)]."

- Rivnak v. Rivnak, 99 Conn. App. 326, 335, 913 A.2d 1096, 1103 (2007). "Contempt proceedings are a proper means of enforcing a court order of child support. A willful failure to pay court ordered child support as it becomes due constitutes indirect civil contempt." Mulholland v. Mulholland, 31 Conn. App. 214, 220, 624 A.2d 379 (1993), aff'd, 229 Conn. 643, 643 A.2d 246 (1994); see also General Statutes § 46b-215."

DEFINITION:

- Aliano v. Aliano, 148 Conn. App. 267, 277-278, 85 A.3d 33, 39-40 (2014). “The court articulated that the defendant lacked the ability to pay $100,000 to the plaintiff . . . The court also stated in its articulation that it found that the defendant’s interpretation of the court order was reasonable and made in good faith, and thus did not amount to wilful disobedience. ‘The contempt remedy is particularly harsh . . . and may be founded solely upon some clear and express direction of the court.... A good faith dispute or legitimate misunderstanding of the terms of an alimony or support obligation may prevent a finding that the payor’s nonpayment was wilful. This does not mean, however, that such a dispute or misunderstanding will preclude a finding of wilfulness as a predicate to a judgment of contempt. Whether it will preclude such a finding is ultimately within the trial court’s discretion.’ (Internal quotation marks omitted.) Behrns v. Behrns, supra, 124 Conn.App. at 808, 6 A.3d 184; see also Martocchio v. Savoie, supra, 130 Conn.App. at 630, 23 A.3d 1282.”
- Carpender v. Sigel, 142 Conn. App. 379, 382, 385, 67 A.3d 1011, 1013-1015 (2013). “The defendant filed a post-judgment motion for contempt requesting that the plaintiff be held in contempt for her failure to comply with the payment of educational and other expenses....

- On the basis of the record provided, we cannot determine that there was error in the court's judgment. There was evidence in the record to support the court's factual findings that the plaintiff did not believe that the parties' son was ready to attend Long Island University, that he was not a good student and that a different school would be better. Given the evidence, the court had a reasonable basis on which to conclude that the plaintiff did not unreasonably withhold her consent to their son's enrollment at Long Island University, and, therefore, there was no abuse of discretion."
- Miller v. Miller, 124 Conn. App. 36, 38, 3 A.3d 1018, 1019-1020 (2010). "The defendant also filed a 'motion for contempt, modification and termination,' alleging that the plaintiff had violated the separation agreement by failing to notify him that she had been cohabiting with another individual. In its ruling on the contempt motions, filed January 2, 2009, the court found that the defendant had failed to establish that the plaintiff had been cohabiting with another individual. The court did not find the defendant in contempt, however, because the court concluded that his actions did not constitute a willful violation of the court's order. In this regard, the court found that although he was mistaken in his belief that the plaintiff was cohabiting, the defendant, nonetheless, honestly believed that he was no longer required to make alimony payments."
- Nunez v. Nunez, 85 Conn. App. 735, 739-740, 858 A.2d 873, 876 (2004). "In Mallory v. Mallory, 207 Conn. 48, 57, 539 A.2d 995 (1988), the defendant father claimed that he was too poor to meet his court-ordered financial obligations. Our Supreme Court, after stating that inability to obey an order qualifies as a proper defense to contempt, stated: 'The defendant in the case at bar, however, failed to seek a modification of his child support obligations until after the plaintiff had instituted contempt proceedings against him. In these circumstances, the trial court did not err in finding the defendant in contempt, at least in regard to the child support arrearage accumulated before he sought a modification of the child support orders.' Id. It concluded that under those circumstances, a finding of contempt was proper. Subsequently, in Sablosky v. Sablosky, supra, 258 Conn. 713, our Supreme Court stated that '[a]lthough one party may believe that his or her situation satisfies this standard [of changed circumstance], until a motion is brought to and is granted by the court, that party may be held in contempt in the discretion of the trial court if, in the interim, the complaining party fails to abide by the support order.' (Emphasis added.) Id., at 722, 784 A.2d 890; see also Bunche v. Bunche, 36 Conn.App. 322, 325, 650 A.2d 917

(1994) (order of court must be obeyed until modified or successfully challenged).”

- Farrell v. Farrell, 36 Conn. App. 305, 309, 650 A.2d 608, 611 (1994). “The defendants also argue that the trial court incorrectly found by clear and convincing evidence that the three properties had been fraudulently conveyed. ‘A party who seeks to set aside a conveyance as fraudulent bears the burden of proving that the conveyance was made without substantial consideration and that, as a result, the transferor was unable to meet his obligations (constructive fraud) or that the conveyance was made with fraudulent intent in which the transferee participated (actual fraud).’ Tessitore v. Tessitore, 31 Conn. App. 40, 42, 623 A.2d 496 (1993). ‘A fraudulent conveyance must be proven by clear and convincing evidence.’ Id. at 43, 623 A.2d 496. Section 2a: Laches and Estoppel

A Guide to Resources in the Law Library

SCOPE:

Bibliographic resources relating to laches and/or estoppel as a defense to contempt in alimony or child support cases in Connecticut.

DEFINITIONS:

- “Laches consists of two elements. ‘First, there must have been a delay that was inexcusable, and, second, that delay must have prejudiced the defendant.’ . . . The mere lapse of time does not constitute laches; . . . unless it results in prejudice to the defendant.” Bozzi v. Bozzi, 177 Conn. 232, 239, 413 A.2d 834, 838 (1979).
- “‘There are two essential elements to an estoppel-the party must do or say something that is intended or calculated to induce another to believe in the existence of certain facts and to act upon that belief; and the other party, influenced thereby, must actually change his position or do some act to his injury which he otherwise would not have done.’ *Fawcett v. - “It is fundamental that a person who claims an estoppel must show that he exercised due diligence to know the truth, and that he not only did not know the true state of things but also lacked any reasonably available means of acquiring knowledge. *Myers v. - “‘In its traditional form the doctrine of equitable estoppel states that a party (1) who is guilty of a misrepresentation of existing fact including concealment, (2) upon which the other party justifiably relies, (3) to his injury, is estopped from denying his utterances or acts to the detriment of the other party.’ Calamari & J. Perillo, Contracts (3d Ed.1987) § 11–29(b), p. 489.” Connecticut National Bank v. Voog, 233 Conn. 352, 366, 659 A.2d 172, 179 (1995).

CASES:

- Kasowitz v. Kazowitz, 140 Conn. App. 507, 513-514, 59 A.3d 347, 350-351 (2013). “Laches is an equitable defense that consists of two elements. First, there must have been a delay that was inexcusable, and, second, that delay must have prejudiced the defendant.... The mere lapse of time does not constitute laches ... unless it results in prejudice to the defendant ... as where, for example, the defendant is led to change his position with respect to the matter in question.... Thus, prejudicial delay is the principal element in establishing the defense

She also made no 'motion in the Superior Court alleging the plaintiff's wilful failure to pay alimony and child support.' The record supports the plaintiff's contention that he changed his position regarding his obligations as a result of her conduct . . . In light of the foregoing, we conclude as a matter of law that the defendant is guilty of laches in the present case. wife may be barred from the equitable aid of the court to secure payment of alimony arrears through use of the power of the court to punish for contempt.”

Indeed, our conclusion is buttressed by the relevant state regulations, as § 17b-179(m)-10 (b) of the Regulations of Connecticut State Agencies provides in relevant part: 'When Connecticut is the responding state, [support enforcement division, now known as support enforcement services] shall: (1) serve as the support enforcement agency under [the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act] and provide any necessary services within the applicable timeframes for the given services which shall include paternity and support obligation establishment, in conjunction with the [attorney general's office], enforcement of court orders, and collection and monitoring of support payments' (Emphasis added)."
- Fish v. Igoe, 83 Conn. App. 398, 402-403, 849 A.2d 910, 913 (2004). "In this case, the child support order, originally rendered in Massachusetts, was registered in Connecticut under UIFSA. As a consequence, we look to General Statutes § 46b-213q (a), which governs the modification of a child support order from another state. Section 46b-213q (a)(1) and (2) set forth alternate ways to confer jurisdiction on a Connecticut family support magistrate to modify a child support order issued in another state. In this case, the three requirements of § 46b-213q (a)(1) were satisfied with respect to the January 30, 2001 modification. Pursuant to subdivision (2) of the statute, a dual filing of written consent is merely an alternate way to modify an out-of-state child support order. Consequently, we conclude that the family support magistrate had jurisdiction to modify the child support order on January 30, 2001.

General Statutes § 46b-213q (d) settles the plaintiff's other jurisdictional argument. Once the original order was modified in Connecticut on January 30, 2001, the family support magistrate had continuing, exclusive jurisdiction to decide the plaintiff's subsequent motion to modify the child support order on December 16, 2002. Accordingly, the plaintiff's subject matter jurisdiction claim fails."

DEFINITIONS:

- “. . . ‘foreign matrimonial judgment’ means any judgment, decree or order of a court of any state in the United States in an action for divorce, legal separation, annulment or dissolution of marriage, for the custody, care, education, visitation, maintenance or support of children or for alimony, support or the disposition of property of the parties to an existing or terminated marriage, in which both parties have entered an appearance.” Conn. DEFINITION:

- “The Superior Court and any family support magistrate shall issue an order for withholding pursuant to this section against the income of an obligor to enforce a support order when the support order is entered or modified or when the obligor is before the court in an enforcement proceeding.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-362(b) (2017).
- “Whenever an order of the Superior Court or a family support magistrate for support of a minor child or children is issued and such payments have been ordered to be made to the state acting by and through the IV-D agency and the person against whom such support order was issued owes past-due support in the amount of five hundred dollars or more, the state shall have a lien on any property, real or personal, in which such person has an interest to enforce payment of such past-due support. The lien for past-due child support shall be secured by the IV-D agency pursuant to procedures contained in the general statutes applicable to the type of property to be secured. After securing the lien, the IV-D agency shall provide such person with notice of the lien and an opportunity for a hearing before a hearing officer of the Department of Social Services pursuant to section 17b-60 to contest the lien. The IV-D agency shall file a release of such lien if a hearing officer determines that the conditions for the existence of a lien are not satisfied. Any such lien on real property may, at any time during which the obligor owes the amount of past-due child support secured by such lien, be foreclosed in an action brought in a court of competent jurisdiction by the Commissioner of Social Services in a title IV-D case or by the person to whom the child support is due. A lien for past-due support arising in any other state shall be given full faith and credit by this state provided such other state has complied with its procedural rules relating to recording or serving of liens.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-362d (2017).
- “The order for imprisonment in this class of cases, therefore, is not to vindicate the authority of the law, but is remedial and is intended to coerce the defendant to do the thing required by the order for the benefit of the complainant. If imprisoned, as aptly said in In Re Nevitt, 54 C. C. A. 622, 117 Fed. 451, ‘he carries the keys of his prison in his own pocket.’ He can end the sentence and discharge himself at any moment by doing what he had previously refused to do." Gompers v. Bucks Stove & Range Co., 221 U.S. 418, 442 (1911).

- "The issue to be decided by the court is whether contempt proceedings are available as a remedy to collect support arrearages after the child has reached the age of majority . . . This court will hold that it has jurisdiction in a contempt proceeding to enter an order to pay child support on unpaid installments which accrued before the child reached majority, where the proceedings were commenced after the child reached majority." Arnold v. - [Profetto v. Lombardi, 164 Conn. App. 658, 663-665, 137 A.3d 922, 925-926 (2016). "In the present case, the judgment of dissolution contained no orders for alimony or child support. A money judgment may be enforced by postjudgment procedures, including the foreclosure of a judgment lien. See General Statutes §§ 52-350f and 52-380a. A money judgment is defined as an order for the payment of a sum of money, but expressly excludes a family support judgment. See General Statutes § 52-350a (13). A family support judgment is an order for payment of a legal obligation for support or alimony to a spouse or former spouse or child. See General Statutes § 52-350a (7). The relevant statutes are clear and unambiguous, and the court's order for the defendant to repay a loan made by the plaintiff to the defendant during the marriage falls squarely within the definition of a money judgment and outside the definition of a family support judgment . . . Accordingly, for all of the foregoing reasons, we conclude that the trial court properly determined that it had jurisdiction over the present action to foreclose a judgment lien."
- Cooke v. Cooke, 99 Conn. App. 347, 352, 913 A.2d 480, 382-483 (2007). "In this instance, the record makes it plain that the order did not oblige Richard T. Cooke to pay a money judgment which is defined statutorily as 'a judgment, order or decree of the court calling in whole or in part for the payment of a sum of money, other than a family support judgment. Money judgment includes any such money judgment of a small claims session of the Superior Court, any foreign money judgment filed with the Superior Court pursuant to the general statutes and in IV-D cases, overdue support in the amount of five hundred dollars or more accruing after the entry of an initial family support judgment.' General Statutes § 52-350a(13). Because the marital dissolution judgment in effect on the date of the imposition of the judgment lien did not order Richard T. Cooke to pay a certain sum, it cannot fairly be characterized as a money judgment.”

- Niles v. Niles, 15 Conn. App. 718, 720-721, 546 A.2d 329, 330 (1988). “It is apparent that an order for the payment of money from the sale of real estate constitutes a ‘money judgment’ and not a ‘family support judgment,’ as those terms are defined, despite the judgment’s origin in an action on the family docket. One party cannot, at its whim, deprive another of monies due and owing simply by changing the characterization of the obligation owed. While similarities exist between support payments and property settlements, we recognize that each serves a distinct purpose. Support, which is generally modifiable, often serves to satisfy an ongoing obligation, whereas a property settlement constitutes a final resolution of a dispute, and as such, warrants the penalty of interest when satisfaction is not obtained. We therefore conclude that the trial court properly ordered that postjudgment interest be paid. See LaBow v. LaBow, 13 Conn.App. 330, 353, 537 A.2d 157 (1988).”
